mygrammarlab book download mygrammarlab english book.Q: Merging arrays in a loop in MATLAB I have a function that at the end I want to merge 2 arrays in a loop, but I am getting an error because when I combine 2 arrays the size is wrong. Here is the function:

function a=printprompts(e,f) % Getting two arrays - prompts and answers. count=1; while ~e.interacted e.interacted=e.interacted(1)+1; % Get the index of the prompt to start indexstart=floor(e.interacted*f.question numprompts/e.interacted)+1; % Get the index of the answer for the prompt answernumber=floor(e.interacte

d*f.questionnumprompts/e.interacted)+1; % Loop for all prompts starting from the second one. for i=indexstart:(e.interacted-1)*f.questionnumprompts+indexstart answers=getanswer(e,f,i); % Store the answer in the answers array. a(count,:)=answers; % In the end all answers should be stored in the answers array.
count=count+1; end end This is my array declaration:
promptArray=randi(200,2,1000,2,2);
answerArray=promptArray(:,:); And the error I get:
Error using merge The first array's dimensions are too large for the destination's 'Numel' property. I have also declared the two arrays as dynamic. Any ideas as to how to fix this? Thanks in advance. A:
